

It's getting colder little by little, and it's time to feel the arrival of full-fledged winter. The children seem to be looking forward to Christmas, making indoor decorations and singing songs.

Influenza is starting to become more prevalent this year. This is the season when infectious diseases are prevalent. Please take basic preventive measures against infectious diseases, such as washing your hands and gargling, and stay healthy.

Enlightenment Society

December 8th (Sunday) is Jodore. It is a Buddhist ceremony held at each temple on December 8th, the day when Buddha is said to have attained enlightenment. Jodo means that a bodhisattva attains enlightenment and becomes a Buddha after training. At the nursery school, we explain it to the children in an easy-to-understand way and celebrate the day of enlightenment together.

winter solstice

The winter solstice is the day with the shortest day and the longest night in the year. It is said to be the day when the power of the sun is at its weakest, and it was believed that people's souls are also weaker as a result. On this day, there is a custom of eating pumpkins, which are rich in vitamins and other nutrients, and they are called "winter solstice pumpkins." It is also said that taking a bath with yuzu floating in it, known as "yuzu bath," will help you avoid catching a cold.

Christmas party

Christmas party will be held on December 25th (Wednesday). Children learn about the origin of Christmas and have a wonderful time filled with dreams.

Basking in the

Ms. M cried because her friend couldn't lend her a toy. Mr. K noticed this and went to get a tissue. As if he was worried, I could see him patting his head and then wiping his face. As Mr. K comforts a crying friend by doing what he would normally do for a crying friend, we can feel that his thinking ability and ability to relate to others has grown.
